TRADE POLICY REVIEW MECHANISM

Report of the Trade Policy Review Body for 2004

Chairperson: H.E. Mrs. Puangrat Asavapisit (Thailand)

1. The Trade Policy Review Mechanism (TPRM) was established in 1989 on a provisional basis and confirmed by Annex 3 of the Marrakesh Agreement establishing the WTO. As required by the Marrakesh Agreement, the operation of the TPRM was appraised by the Trade Policy Review Body in 1999. The Appraisal concluded that the TPRM functions effectively, that its mission and objectives remain important, and that all Members should be reviewed at least once as soon as possible; the TPRM had also "demonstrated that it had a valuable public good aspect, particularly in its contribution to transparency".¹ Members have also kept the Mechanism under frequent review over the years, as a result of which a number of procedural improvements have been introduced since 1989.

2. This Report by the Trade Policy Review Body provides a brief assessment of the TPRM, and reports on the reviews of Members conducted in 2004. Tables are annexed showing the Members reviewed up to the end of 2004, the geographical coverage of the reviews conducted to date, as well as the proposed programme of reviews for the year 2005.

Objectives of the TPRM

3. Annex 3 of the Marrakesh Agreement states the objectives of the TPRM as: "to contribute to improved adherence by all Members to rules, disciplines and commitments made under the Multilateral Trade Agreements and, where applicable, the Plurilateral Trade Agreements, and hence to the smoother functioning of the multilateral trading system, by achieving greater transparency in, and understanding of, the trade policies and practices of Members".

4. In this regard, the TPRM is required to periodically review the trade policies and practices of all Members. By the end of 2004, the TPRM will have conducted 197 reviews since its formation (Annex I). The reviews have covered 114 of 148 Members, representing around 88% of the share of world trade. The trade policies and practices of four Members will have been reviewed for the first time during 2004.² The increased importance given to the reviews of least developed countries (LDCs) has led to 20 such reviews since 1998.³

³ The least developed countries reviewed since the establishment of the Mechanism are: Bangladesh (twice), Benin (twice), Burkina Faso (twice), Burundi, Gambia, Guinea, Haiti, Lesotho (twice), Madagascar, Malawi, Maldives, Mali (twice), Mauritania, Mozambique, Niger, Rwanda, Senegal (twice), the Solomon Islands, Tanzania, Togo, Uganda (twice), and Zambia (twice).

5. The Trade Policy Review Body will have conducted 15 reviews in 2004 (Annex II).⁴ The Secretariat reports for the reviews of Benin, Burkina Faso, Mali, Sri Lanka, and Switzerland/Liechtenstein were prepared with the assistance of consultants, under the close supervision of Secretariat staff. Financing from, and the experience gained as a consequence of, the German Trust Fund proved invaluable in preparing the reviews of Benin, Burkina Faso, and Mali.⁵ The Secretariat's reports continue to be written in close consultation with the authorities of the Member under review.

6. Procedures for the reviews conducted in 2004 have generally run smoothly. Responses to requests for documentation and questionnaires have normally been provided at or close to the requested dates. In line with recent practice, the Secretariat has attempted to reduce the burden on Members under review of providing responses by using, to the extent possible, alternative sources of documentation, including Members' official web-sites or other authentic sites on the Internet. It has not been possible to do this for all Members under review, and requests for documentation continue to be followed up with a detailed questionnaire when sufficient information is not available from alternative sources. Secretariat visits to capitals have continued to be productive, and comments provided on Secretariat drafts have been pertinent; close contact with the Member under review is necessary to help ensure the factual accuracy and clarity of the documentation prepared for the Review. The result is that the quality, content, and style of the reviews has been maintained.

7. The reviews conducted in 2004 were relatively evenly spaced throughout the period, reducing pressure of preparation on the Membership for review meetings at close intervals. For technical reasons, the reviews of the European Communities and Rwanda were each postponed for a few months beyond their originally planned dates; due to unforeseen events, the review of Jamaica had to be delayed from November 2004 to January 2005. Efforts also continue to be made to avoid clashes with other meetings at the WTO; nevertheless, clashes do at times happen. The cooperative publishing agreement with an international publishing company has shortened the period between review meetings and the publication of related documents.

8. The Trade Policy Review programme for 2005 comprises 18 reviews. These will be of:

- Japan on the two-year cycle;
- Malaysia on the four-year cycle;
- Bolivia, Ecuador, Egypt, Jamaica, Mongolia, Nigeria, Paraguay, the Philippines and Qatar, Romania, Trinidad and Tobago, and Tunisia on the six-year cycle; and
- four least developed countries: Djibouti, Guinea, Sierra Leone and Togo.⁶

9. The TPRB intends to continue to provide an evenly spaced programme of reviews in 2005, thereby avoiding a concentration of reviews and delays that have occurred in the past.

Value of the TPRM

10. As envisaged in Annex 3, the TPRM continues to be a valuable forum for achieving transparency in, and understanding of, the trade policies and practices of Members, thus contributing to the smoother functioning of the multilateral trading system. It provides a forum in which Members may openly discuss and provide an objective analysis of each others' trade policies and practices. The reports prepared by the Secretariat provide a factual and independent review of the trade policies and practices of individual Members under review and are, in general, appreciated by both the Member(s) under review and the overall Membership. By providing an overall picture of the institutional interaction in trade policy formulation and implementation and the effect of policies on different sectors, the reports have also served as an input to trade policy formulation in some cases. In addition, several developing and least developed country Members have found the reviews valuable in highlighting their infrastructural constraints and technical assistance needs.

⁴ A 16th review, that of Jamaica, was fully prepared for 8 and 10 November but had to be delayed, in consequence of unforeseen events, to January 2005.

⁵ In 2000, the Federal Republic of Germany made available DM1 million over a four-year period to undertake reviews of developing countries and to facilitate the trade-policy review process to better adapt it to the requirements of developing countries.

⁶ There is the possibility that a review of Angola will also be scheduled, in the context of the Trade Policy Clinic exercise for Angola.

11. While carrying out an assessment of the Members' trade policies and practices, the review process also discusses the economic impact of trade measures, and places the trade and economic regimes of individual Members within the broader context of developments in their region. Given the growing importance of regional trade agreements and groupings, the analysis in the reports has proved useful in discussing the wider impact of recent economic developments in certain regions, as well as the more general question of the impact of regionalism on the multilateral trading system.

Points emerging from the 2004 reviews

12. While each review highlights the specific issues and measures concerning the individual Member, certain common themes emerged during the course of the reviews conducted in 2004. These included:

- transparency in policy-making and implementation;
- economic environment and trade liberalization;
- implementation of the WTO Agreements;
- regional trade agreements and their relationship with the multilateral trading system;
- tariff issues, including peaks, escalation, preferences, rationalization and the gap between applied and bound rates;
- customs clearance procedures;
- import and export restrictions and licensing procedures;
- the use of contingency measures such as anti-dumping and countervailing duties;
- technical and sanitary measures and market access;
- standards and their equivalence with international norms;
- intellectual property rights legislation and enforcement;
- government procurement policies and practices⁷;
- state involvement in the economy and privatization programmes;
- trade-related competition and investment policy issues;
- incentive measures such as subsidies and tax forgone;
- sectoral trade-policy issues, particularly liberalization in agriculture and certain services sectors;
- GATS commitments;
- special and differential treatment, including market access and implementation, particularly for customs valuation, TRIPS and TRIMs; and
- technical assistance in implementing the WTO Agreements and the experience with the Integrated Framework.

Coverage of least developed countries (LDCs)

13. The Trade Policy Review Body's Report to the Singapore Ministerial Meeting suggested that greater attention be paid to the coverage of LDCs in the preparation of the TPRB timetable, and the 1999 Appraisal of the operation of the TPRM also drew attention to this matter. The TPRB has continued to review a steady number of least developed Members. Of the 32 least developed

⁷ This has been discussed even in cases where Members are not party to the plurilateral Agreement on Government Procurement.

Members of the WTO, 22 will have been reviewed by the end of 2004; five of these were reviewed in 2004.⁸

14. Trade Policy Reviews of LDCs have increasingly performed a technical assistance function and have been useful in increasing understanding of the trade policy structure in place and its relationship with the WTO Agreements. The reviews have also enhanced understanding in these countries of the WTO Agreements, enabling better compliance and integration in the multilateral trading system; in some cases, better interaction between government agencies has been facilitated by the reviews. The reports' wide coverage of Members' policies also enables Members to identify any shortcomings in policy and specific areas where further technical assistance may be required.

15. Since 2000, the preparation of reviews of LDCs has responded more systematically to technical assistance needs. The review process for an LDC now includes a two-to-three-day seminar for its officials on the WTO and, in particular, the trade policy review exercise and the role of trade in economic policy; such seminars have been held during 2004 for the review process of Guinea, Rwanda, Sierra Leone and Togo; in addition, similar exercises were conducted in the preparation of the reviews of Benin, Burkina Faso, and Mali (as well as Belize and Suriname). The Secretariat Report for an LDC review includes a section on technical assistance needs and priorities, as identified in cooperation with the Member concerned, with a view to feeding this into the Integrated Framework process. The seminars and the technical assistance section in the Secretariat reports involve close cooperation with the WTO's Development Division and Institute for Training and Technical Cooperation Division.

Conclusion

16. The Trade Policy Review Mechanism provides a forum in which Members discuss each others' trade policies in a transparent and frank manner. The forum is unique in that the separation of the TPRM from the compliance and dispute settlement aspects of WTO work allows an open debate. The 15 reviews conducted in 2004 have been satisfactory, and have met deadlines agreed with the Members. The reviews have been relatively evenly spaced throughout the period, giving adequate time to Members to prepare for the meetings. The discussants have continued to play a very useful role in assisting the discussion during the reviews. The programme for 2005, similarly, aims to avoid delays and concentration of reviews.

17. The TPRM continues to function effectively in meeting its transparency goals. However, as the Membership of the WTO increases, the pressure on the TPRB to review more Members grows. This, and the limited resources available to the Secretariat to prepare the reviews, makes it important to keep the Mechanism functioning as effectively as possible within these constraints. In particular, continued cooperation between Members and the Secretariat in preparing the reports is essential, as is the respect of deadlines, in order to maintain the standard and quality of the reports, and in the successful reviews of Members by the TPRB.

⁸ These were Benin, Burkina Faso, Gambia, Mali and Rwanda. The least developed country Members of the WTO yet to be reviewed are: Angola, Cambodia, Central African Republic, Chad, Democratic Republic of Congo, Djibouti, Guinea-Bissau, Myanmar, Nepal, and Sierra Leone. Djibouti and Sierra Leone are scheduled for review in 2005.
