

ELENA TARASENKO, PhD in sociology, Researcher, National Research University Higher School of Economics

Dr. Tarasenko is a PhD in sociology, Associate Professor, Department of Health Care Management and Economics, School of Politics and Governance, Faculty of Social Sciences, National Research University Higher School of Economics. She participated as researcher in Russian and international research programs. Elena is an expert in social policy for the elderly and people with disability, social and medical services. She read lecture courses “Social Services and Social Work”, “Medical Ethics and Deontology”, “Healthcare Marketing” at the master's programs of the School of Politics and Governance at the Faculty of Social Sciences. Her research interests are social policy for the elderly and people with disabilities, social inclusion, integration of medical and social services, new business formats in health care and hospital market, best practices of geriatric health care.