

PROF. DR. SIMONE SCHERGER, professor of social policy and life courses, SOCIUM Research Center on Inequality and Social Policy, University of Bremen, Germany

She is a sociologist and has been a professor of social policy and life courses at the SOCIUM Research Center on Inequality and Social Policy (University of Bremen, Germany) since 2018. Her research and publications focus on life courses and social policy, age and ageing, social inequalities and generations. From 2010 until 2017 she was head of the Emmy Nother research group on paid employment beyond pension age in Germany and the UK. She is a member of the current pension commission (“reliable contract of generations”) of the German government.